The capital of the island, Kèrkyra (Corfu), is a beautiful, sophisticated and charming town. It is also one of the most elegant island capitals in the whole of Greece, as it was modernised for the 1994 EU summit. The architecture in town is influenced by the French, the Italians and the British, but it still has a contemporary Greek feel to it, which makes it an amazing place to visit.

THE CITY

© 8273464@N03

Corfu is considered by many to be the most beautiful of all the Greek islands. It is the greenest of the Ionian Islands and probably also the best known. The island offers a beguiling landscape of wild flowers, cypress trees, olive trees and several seductively sandy beaches. Corfu also has a major vegetable garden which gives the fresh mountain air a pleasant scent. To the south of Corfu town is Moraitika and Messonghi which have beautiful scenery and beaches. However, the west coast of the island is the most attractive as that is the place where you will find some of the prettiest countryside around and it is also here that you will find the small coves with the sandy beaches surrounded by cliffs and trees. The north coast is more typical Greek with a rocky coastline where the crystal clear water has chopped into pebbled bays and coves.

Achillion Palace

This spectacular building, which is located in the village of Gastouri, was originally built as a summer retreat for the Empress of Austria in 1890. It has several beautiful sculptures and a wonderful garden.

Address: Achillion Palace, Gastouri, Corfu

BEACH LIFE

Nude bathing is only legal on a very few beaches in Greece and it is considered offensive to the traditional Greeks. It is also very bad etiquette to swim or sunbathe within sight of a church and there are several churches around the Greek coastline. Topless sunbathing is legal nationwide but there are several areas which have adopted their own policy and opted out of this liberal approach by posting signs which should not be ignored. The police rarely hand out fines but you can end up with three days in jail if you ignore the first warning. The island is full of lovely beaches and especially Myrriotissa near Corfu, Glyfada and Pelekas on the west coast are worth a visit. There are also plenty of secluded beaches on the west coast with is easiest reached by a water-taxi or by one of the small day-tripper boats for a fee.

EATING

SHOPPING

© 8273464@N03

Corfu offers a big variety of shops. Down the cobbled streets and alleyways you can find everything from the small gift and souvenir shop to the boutique with exclusive Italian designer clothes. There are many interesting shops in between, but the best deal can be made on leather goods, jewellery, gold, silver and fur coats. However, if you are going to buy jewellery it is important that you use a reputable jeweller. The area around Ionian Sea is famous for its ceramic work and there are plenty of opportunities to see that on display in the shop windows around town. Naturally, it is also being sold in most of the souvenir shops around town. Probably the most unusual and the most fascinating is the amount of handwoven carpets, tablecloths, napkins, skirts and blouses of lace and cotton which are available in Corfu town. Heavy white stitched sweaters, which are made on the Aegean Island, are also very popular among tourists. Other typical Greek things to bring home could be the skewers for souvlaki, and also the Greek pastries are very tasty. There are usually bargains to be found if you are willing to negotiate, and the prices tend to fall a little when the tourist season is about to end.

Airport

Corfu International Airport, I. Kapodistrias, is two kilometres south of Corfu city. There is a bus station next to the Arrivals Hall where buses depart to the bus terminal in the city of Corfu and the Platia Y Theotoki. The local blue buses no.5 and no.6 can be flagged down where the airport junction meets the main road. If you prefer to walk into town it will take you an estimated 30 minutes. You can of course also catch a local taxi (tel: +30 2661 033 811) and it is a good idea to agree to a price in advance.

Internet: www.hcaa-eleng.gr/kerk.htm

Public transport

From central Corfu there are buses to take you to different destinations on the island and they are reasonably reliable. The long distance buses leave from the bus station which is close to the New Port in Corfu Town and the local bus station is on Pleteia San Rocco. The green buses are the long distance ones and the blue buses are local. If you don't like the buses there is always the possibility of hiring a car or a motorcycle to take you around the island's lovely and attractive beaches.

Tourist Traps

The most common tourist trap on Corfu is overly-expensive taxi rides. Therefore it's a good idea to insist that all fares are shown on the meter. Some restaurants overcharge on the bill so it is generally a good idea to check your bill before you just pay the amount requested. However, most establishments are reasonably honest.
